

Sandy Glover is an Assistant United States Attorney and has been Appeals Chief in the United States Attorney's Office for the District of Connecticut since 2010. In 2012, Sandy was appointed to the Appellate Chief's Working Group of the Attorney General's Advisory Committee, and she served as Chair of that Working Group, and as a member of the Attorney General's Advisory Committee, from 2014-2017.

She received her B.A. with High Distinction in Foreign Affairs from the University of Virginia and a M.A. in Political Science from Duke University. She graduated with highest honors from the University of Chicago Law School, where she served as Articles Editor for the University of Chicago Law Review.

Following graduation, she served as a law clerk for Chief Judge Richard A. Posner of the United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit, and for Justice Sandra Day O'Connor of the United States Supreme Court. Following her clerkships, she entered private practice in Washington, D.C., and then from 2001-2002, she served as an appellate lawyer for the Environment & Natural Resources Division of the Department of Justice. After Sandy moved to Connecticut in 2002, she was an associate at Wiggin & Dana before moving to the United States Attorney's Office in 2004.